Slick Held For Trial After Gun-Fight Tale

By DAVE ANDREWS
MENOMINEE — Det. Sgt. Roy Tanner of the Michigan State Police Post at Ypsilanti told a tale of a running gun battle, but left questions unanswered Friday in the preliminary examination of Claire G. Slick of Ypsilanti on a murder charge.

Slick, 44, a United Auto Workers bargaining committeeman, was bound over to the Jan. 9 term of Circuit Court for trial by Justice Emil Ewald after Prosecutor Russell Bradley presented four witnesses. A motion to dismiss the charge on grounds of lack of evidence by Attorney Kenneth Doyle of Menominee, representing Slick, was denied.

Slick is charged with shooting Walter T. Wojcik, 30, of Rte. 1, Wilson, to death on Kimberly-Clark land near the Wojcik farm in Harris Township, Menominee County, on Nov. 18.

On defense motion without objection from Bradley, Ewald allowed the defendant freed on $10,000 property bond.

Tanner, a veteran police officer who has been a detective since 1962, followed Mrs. Bertha Wojcik, 67, the victim's mother; Dr. Roland Berry, Escanaba, pathologist at St. Francis Hospital who performed the autopsy on the victim, and Det. Sgt. Edwin Hill, Marquette, officer in charge of the investigation, to the stand.

He told this story:

On the morning of Nov. 23 he was called by Prosecutor William Delhey of Ann Arbor to come to his office to talk to Attorney Richard Ryan of Ann Arbor in regard to a shooting in the Upper Peninsula.

Learns Of Appearance

On arriving at the office, Tanner said he learned Slick had gone to Ryan stating he could have been involved in a shooting. Tanner said he advised Slick of his constitutional rights and then took a tape recorded statement from the defendant.

(The tape recording was present in the courtroom, but was not offered in evidence as Tanner testified.)

Tanner said Slick told him he had gone deer hunting in the Upper Peninsula with six other persons, including his two sons, and they first hunted near Republic. The hunting party, using two pickup trucks with campers and Slick's pickup truck, arrived north of La-Branche Wednesday night, Nov. 18.

The men hunted Thursday and went out again Friday morning. It was on Friday morning, Tanner said, that Slick and a partner, Albert

Johnson Calls Latin Nations To Cooperate

CIUDAD ACUNA, Mexico (AP) — President Johnson said today a strong, integrated Latin America can be achieved only by working across frontiers and pooling human and material resources.

He said the cooperation between the United States and Mexico in building the $78-million Amistad Dam upstream from Ciudad Acuna and Del Rio, Tex., "sets a pattern which I hope will be increasingly repeated by neighboring countries throughout the hemisphere."

Johnson crossed the Rio Grande to join Mexican President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz in inspecting the huge dam. In a speech prepared for ceremonies in the town square of the border community, Johnson said "in the total development of Latin America, region-wide plans and collaboration are absolutely necessary."

He said the forthcoming meeting of presidents of American republics, which he is expected to attend, will provide "an opportunity to give the multinational project movement added impetus."

Johnson described the Amistad Dam as "another link in the bridge of mutual trust, friendship and progress which unite our peoples."

Because Mexican law prohibits Diaz Ordaz from leaving his country without permission of his Congress — and the Mexican Congress is not in session — the two presidents arranged to meet at the middle of the International Bridge near Del Rio, then motor to Ciudad Acuna.

Govt. Predicts 1967 Plant Expansion Cut

Slowdown May Avoid Tax Hike Call From LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government predicts a slowdown next year in the rate of growth of business spending for new plants and equipment — a key economic factor certain to be weighed by President Johnson as he ponders the possibility of a tax increase.

Johnson also received Friday a glowing forecast for the nation's economy in 1967. Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said prosperity will continue next year, no recession is in sight and prices should level off.

As Ackley was conferring with Johnson in Texas, the Labor Department reported unemployment in November dropped to 3.7 per cent for the third month this year — the lowest level since 1953 — while total employment climbed to 75 million — higher than any other November.

The Commerce Department and the Securities and Exchange Commission predicted plant and equipment spending by business will increase at a rate of 7 per cent in the first half of 1967, compared with the 16.5 per cent rate of growth projected for all of 1966.

The government survey indicated capital spending would be at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $62.6 billion in the final three months of 1966, rising to $63.45 billion for the first quarter of 1967 and to $64 billion in the second quarter.

These figures, which officials have said will be considered by the administration in reaching a decision on a tax increase, are another indication the economy is cooling off.

Talking with newsmen in Austin, Tex., Ackley predicted an easing of inflationary pressures in 1967.

"Of course prosperity will continue. We will have an expanding economy," he said. "I certainly see no reasonable prospect of a recession. We are also looking forward to increasing price stability. We don't expect a repetition of the large increase in farm and food prices we had this year."

Reds Down Six U.S. Bombers; 11 Fliers Lost

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Six U.S. supersonic jet bombers went down over North Viet Nam Friday and U.S. headquarters said all 11 fliers aboard them were lost — the highest single-day toll of airmen in the war.

Some of the American planes clashed with Communist MIGs, but none were hit by the enemy fighters, headquarters said.

It listed all the 11 American fliers as missing — presumed dead or captured. The loss of planes was the second heaviest of the war for one day.

During the raids, a flight of four F105 Thunderchiefs encountered two of the late-model MIGs and in a brief dogfight, the Communist jets fired heat-seeking air-to-air missiles. But a U.S. spokesman said the encounter broke off without damage to either side.

The report of the U. S. air losses followed word from the Vietnamese government that U. S. troops would move into the vital Mekong Delta where the Vietnamese and Viet Cong have been deadlocked for months.

Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky told newsmen the American forces will begin moving into the delta within three or four weeks. U. S. military officials declined to comment.

Michigan's "winter wonderland" came to full fury last weekend and people are still wondering what they did to deserve such a mauling by the weather.

While there were no lives lost on shore as a result of the storm, gale-whipped Lake Huron claimed 28 men with the sinking of the ore carrier Morrell.

The storm more firmly established the Upper Peninsula's reputation as a winter sports mecca — but it landed a foul blow just under Escanaba's "banana belt."

The Detroit newspaper described the storm tieup of traffic as the worst in 10 years in the Marquette area, but there is reason to believe that the storm may have caused the greatest tieup of highway traffic in the history of the Upper Peninsula.

If true — and it is a difficult situation to assess — it would be because of the changing nature of highway traffic. The common carriers operate all winter and an increasing number of private cars make long winter trips now. The snowstorm which grew out of a rainstorm that started in midday Sunday caught a very heavy flow of traffic on the highways because thousands of persons were returning to colleges and universities and to their homes after Thanksgiving Holiday visits.

Armory Is Refuge

Hotels and motels were filled everywhere along the heavily traveled routes. Some of the motels in the Manistique area had closed for the winter and Mrs. Norman Main opened her Manistique Manor hotel to orphans of the storm without charge.

Guardsmen served hot coffee and chocolate to storm refugees who sought shelter in the National Guard Armory at Manistique on Sunday night. The number got up to a peak of 300 persons, sleeping on tables and couches and on the floor. There were still a few in the Armory at noon Monday and all the motels in area were filled.

Utilities Hard Hit

Merwin White asked to be excused from the Manistique city council meeting because Edison Sault Electric Co. was trying to restore service to all its customers. He worked 30 hours without break.

The storm, coming unusually early in the winter for such a cripple, caused so much damage to electric and telephone lines that service for the latter was not back to normal in some Upper Peninsula areas yet Friday. And there were still cars abandoned in the storm beside the highways in a few of the areas hit hardest by the storm. Cold followed the snow and even after highways were opened it was difficult to start stalled cars. Some of them had exhausted their gasoline supply to keep occupants warm with the heater as long as possible.

It was a common sight, patrolmen in the Escanaba area said, to see a person with a 3-gallon gasoline can hiking on the highway to fill the tank of a stalled car with a motor running. The Escanaba Town Hall sheltered hundreds in the storm.

Casimir Mikolajewicz, operator of the Bay View Super IGA Market, a free lance photographer for WLUC-TV drove from Escanaba to Trenary on Monday to make storm movies.

It took him two hours to make the 33 miles. "At the parking lot on US-41 at the Hub at Trenary," said Mikolajewicz "there were a couple dozen cars and three big trucks at noon Monday. The restaurant had about 50 people in it; it was filled. There were a lot of college kids among them some of them sleeping on chairs. Some people were standing because there weren't enough chairs for all of them."

"Everyone praised the people running the restaurant. They had found rooms for 23 people the night before and they had served about 300 meals and snacks, which was about a week's normal business. I guess. To the north on US-41 cars couldn't get through to Skandia and Marquette unless they were right behind a snowplow. The road plugged up fast after the plow had passed."

"There were five Greyhound buses at the bus station at Rapid River Monday. They couldn't get through on their runs. I got stuck in front of the bus station and some college kids who had been there all night pushed me out. They said that there had been about 200 of them stalled on their way back to school."

"The lack of visibility in the driving snowstorm was the worst. I think it caused the ditching of most of the cars. You couldn't see the front end of your car and by the time you found you were off the road it was too late. Once down in the ditch you stayed there; you couldn't get out. Even some of the wreckers got stuck. I counted 15 cars in the ditch between Rapid River and Trenary. I couldn't see anyone in any of them, but a couple had been left with their lights burning."

"There were no lights at the Hub at Trenary part of the time and that didn't help much." This condition brought some of the greatest problems of the storm, with hundreds of homes in the mid-Upper Peninsula area without electric power for several days. Even those with gas couldn't use their furnaces for lack of electric power, although they could use their ranges and gas water heaters.

Phone service was a shambles. It was hard hit in the Manistique area and also in the Chatham-AuTrain area. AuTrain reported on Wednesday that it had been without phone service since Sunday.

Only 13 inches Negaunee reported that although the snowfall had been only 13 inches compared with 18 in an October snowstorm, the traffic tieup was much worse because of winds of 25 to 35 miles an hour, and gusts up to 60 mph which packed the drifts hard and closed highways. State Police Trooper Hugh Firth of the Manistique Post lives on M-84 and on his way to work on Monday morning he pulled two cars out of the ditch to start his good deeds for the day.

Harry Anderson of Blaney Park, who visited Manistique this week said "Someone told me just last week that there wasn't going to be any snow for Christmas this year. I'd like to have had that prophet with me the past couple days."

There were many tales of stormy adventure — and some of just plain endurance while stalled motorists waited for the storm to pass and rescue plows to arrive.

Warehouse Fire Loss Is $15,000

ROCK—A machinery and potato warehouse at the Ronald Beauchamp farm about one-quarter mile east of Rock was destroyed with the loss in excess of $15,000 Friday afternoon.

The cause of the fire has not been determined. Firemen from Rock, Perkins and Gladstone fought the blaze and kept it from spreading to other buildings, including the Beauchamp home.

The Beauchamp's reported they have insurance coverage for about half of the loss.

Arnold Saven of Rock, who was driving by, noticed the smoke and informed the Beauchamp's of the fire at about 2 p.m.

The flames had already gained such headway that the warehouse, which has concrete block walls and is built into the side of a hill, could not be saved. The building was about 30 feet long and 40 feet wide and was constructed 15 years ago. A new roof had been put on in 1962 to replace one caved in by snow.

The Beauchamp's had sold their fall crop of potatoes, leaving only about 600 bushels of seed potatoes and 50 bushels of potatoes for family use, in the bottom part of the warehouse.

On the second floor were a new potato washer, a grader, and potato elevator; three tractors, one of which was a new diesel, and other equipment. All was lost in the fire.

The Beauchamp's said they have not yet decided whether to rebuild.

Mr. Beauchamp had surgery at St. Francis Hospital on Monday and had been discharged from the hospital and returned to his farm home on Thursday.

Running Fight In Killing Described

Dill of Livonia, decided to go on private property (the Wojcik land) to hunt.

Five Two Shots
Tanner said that after the men went about 300 yards they heard a car coming and started to run. (At the time of interview, Tanner said, Slick was aware that there had been trespass trouble on the Wojcik farm before.)

The detective said Slick told him a person (apparently Wojcik) started chasing them and fired several shots. Tanner said that Slick then turned around and fired two shots in return.

The detective said he later learned that Dill also fired two shots.

Slick and Dill went different directions and Slick then went back to his car, which was along a woods trail road leading to a gate entering the Wojcik property.

Tanner said he was told a man (Wojcik) came to the camper a short time later and was apparently writing down a license number when confronted by Slick. The detective said Slick said he asked the man to leave when the man whirled toward him and fired his rifle from the hip.

Shot Misses Slick
The shot missed Slick and Slick fired a shot "from the hip" in return, the bullet kicking dust at the man's feet.

The men then fled to the woods and Slick ran behind a tree. Tanner said he was told that the man raised his arms as if to shoot again and that Slick, seeing this fired another shot "from the hip."

Tanner testified that Slick said he saw the man turn as if to leave and that he (Slick) also turned back to camp.

Slick told the officer that he did not know a man had been killed until he read about a shooting in the Upper Peninsula in the Ypsilanti newspaper. After talking to Dill, who also had seen the story in a Detroit newspaper, and an attorney, Slick then presented himself to the Washtenaw County prosecutor.

Rifle Seized
Left unanswered by the testimony was how Wojcik's .22 caliber automatic rifle, which was found 8 feet, 7 inches from his body, was smashed.

Det. Hill testified the rifle was found in two pieces, its stock broken off in the area where it forms a "pistol-type" grip. He said the gun had not been struck by a bullet, but appeared rather to have been split like a piece of kindling wood.

Hill said the tree from which Slick allegedly fired the fatal shot was 106 feet from the spot where Wojcik's body was found and 374 feet from the gate to the Wojcik property.

The prosecution also introduced into evidence a .30-06 Remington rifle with scope which was taken from Slick's wife.

Dr. Berry testified that Wojcik died from a bullet wound in front of the middle of his body. The bullet entered the right side of his body, in the lower rib area, made a track across the front of his body, and exited on the left side, Berry said.

Ballist Still Questioned
He said the tract indicated a caliber bullet of at least .30 but not exceeding .45. Berry said he found no foreign objects (bullets) in the body.

It was not brought out whether or not police have recovered the fatal bullet. Also there was no testimony, other than that of Slick through Tanner, as to whether or not Wojcik's rifle had been fired.

Doyle offered no objections through the hearing and gave no indication of what defense would be used in the trial. The defendant sat stone-faced throughout the hearing. He was wearing a brown business suit.

His wife, Mary, son George, 16, and Milo Croft, one of the hunting party, sat in the courtroom's first row with Sheriff Edward Reindl. Armed deputies were present throughout the hearing.

quette. He is a student at Northern Michigan University and his wife is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams of 807 Michigan Ave., Gladstone, with whom they had spent the weekend.

The Cooks left Gladstone at 7:30 p.m. Sunday to drive to Marquette in the face of the blizzard. In that same Green Garden Hill area where other motorists stalled in the drifts the Cooks little MG gave up also.

The young people got out of their car a little later and were welcomed into the more roomy interior of the Greyhound bus, where they stayed throughout the night. About 3 a.m. Monday they were among the fortunate ones whose car was hooked onto a snowplow, and they were pulled out of the drifts to a point where they could make their way on to their destination.

They arrived in Marquette at 3:30 p.m. Monday — more than 18 hours after leaving Gladstone.

Streets Were Blocked
In the little town of McMillan in western Lapeer County the doors were opened hospitably to the many motorists — men, women and children — who were stranded there when M-28 was closed by the storm Sunday night.

Mrs. Muriel Crawford, the Daily Press correspondent at McMillan, tells the story:

"Many were forced to abandon their cars and were brought into town by snow machines for refuge in private homes and in the Columbus Township Hall. Food was prepared and taken to the Hall, where meals were served to 150 people.

"Streets were blocked by the huge snowbanks. Cars, trucks and trailers were lined up waiting for the storm to subside so plows could clear the way and they could depart. Side streets still are not cleared (Thursday) because of the need for plows to open the main highways to traffic. Many of the stranded travelers were students returning to college at Marquette or Houghton."

Chief Marooned
The storm had no respect for authority — for among those stranded in Naubinway in Mackinac County was Sgt. Lucien D. Conrad, commander of the Manistique State Police Post.

Sgt. Conrad arrived at Blaney Park about 11 p.m. Sunday and finding the road blocked he turned back toward St. Ignace and found shelter with 30 other persons in a private home at Naubinway. The only heat was supplied by a fireplace.

Sgt. Conrad finally reached Manistique at 9 p.m. Monday. Meanwhile the State Police Post in Manistique was serving as a temporary sanctuary for other marooned motorists. About 11 people stayed there. Munising and Alger County were hit hard by the storm, although M-28 was kept open to traffic. Within the city of Munising the storm caught the community without a snowplow — for it had been sent out for repairs. The plow could not be returned to service in Munising until early Tuesday morning.

Students Complain
At Engadine in Mackinac County just off US-2 a falling tree damaged a bus standing at the depot. Passengers were housed overnight in Engadine at the town hall.

The Newberry news reports that Engadine was involuntary host to about 300 persons. The townspeople did the best they could to make everyone comfortable.

"Added to Engadine's misfortune were a number of students who were returning to college, who whined about the quantity and quality of the food and quarters available, and among other depredations, squirted fire extinguisher fluid over the walls of the new town hall."

Lots of people became much better acquainted — having no choice other than proximity — as a result of the emergency. There was an unofficial report from one "unfortunate" victim of the storm that the small tavern in which some 150 people sought shelter ran out of potable supplies before morning. From that hour on there was real suffering.

U.S. EMBRACES CAPITALISM—AND AMERICANS BECOME BEST-FED, BEST-CLOTHED, BEST-HOUSED PEOPLE ON EARTH
The world has seen—and tried—many different economic systems. But none has ever worked so well for so many as the Capitalism developed over the years in the U.S. This fact speaks for itself: Americans are better housed, better clothed and better fed than any civilization in the history of the world—past or present. No other statement need be made to prove the worth of Capitalism. Capitalism means much more than just Wall Street. It reaches into the north, south, east and west, from farm to factory, providing a combination of freedom and opportunity for well-being not possible under any other economic system. Many great events have happened here; and certainly one of the greatest—and one we often don't think about or fully appreciate—has been the development of our Capitalism. Dahl Retiring After 40 Years On Mail Route

ALFRED DAHL of Cornell is pictured at the mail sorting rack of the Cornell Post Office. He is retiring after 40 years of service on a rural route which has grown to more than 75 miles and which serves 600 patrons.

Alfred Dahl of Cornell is retiring after 40 years of service as rural mail carrier.

He was appointed to a tri-weekly route of 17.1 miles emanating out of the Cornell post office on Nov. 15, 1926. In 1937 it became a daily route of 18.25 miles. On July 1, 1934 it was extended to 50.25 miles, covering the Boney Falls and Watson areas. On Jan. 2, 1946 another 8 mile extension was added, including the Finnish settlement at Watson. Later 15 more miles were added and an additional 2 miles still later, making a total of 75.25 miles which he covers today.

In 1926 when Dahl first started the route he would cover half of the route with the horse and cutter and the other half with a 1925 Model T Ford. Roads at that time were just trails in some places and not the present blacktop highways. Dahl has many memories of time spent in snow drifts and mud holes.

In Alfred Dahl's service he has seen many babies grow into adulthood and marry and raise families and many old settlers still remain on the route.

August Lundgaard was postmaster for Dahl until his retirement, and at that time Elroy Backlund took over the position. He remains as postmaster. Substitutes assisting at vacation time and in case of sickness were Elmer Nelson, Russell Backlund, Dave Campbell and Warren Rose.

There are 600 patrons on the present route. The Dahls have 3 sons, Alfred Jr., of Cornell, Rudolph of Iron Mountain, and Robert, of Cornell. Dahl is a charter member of the Cornell Lions Club and also of the Rural Letter Carriers of the U. P. and a member of the Cornell Methodist Church.

He enjoys gardening and fishing and plans on spending his retirement at his home in Cornell, and Florida, and at his cabin on Goose Neck Lake.

GOP Blowing It?

A lot of people voted against Democratic liberalism on Nov. 8. The result was such a resurgence of Republican office holding that it will change the trend of state and national legislation.

The Democrats held such a lopsided margin in the Senate and House that they couldn't be turned out of power in one election but the Republicans' hope is that they can build on this election and strengthen themselves further so that the 1968 elections will show a strong two party political system operative.

But the voting machines had hardly cooled when the jockeying for party leadership among the Republicans brought threat of a serious Republican rift. If the Republicans are going to build up a serious threat to Lyndon Johnson in 1968 they can do it only by presenting a strong front. The Democratic defeat of Nov. 8 was a national criticism of the administration's domestic program, probably aggravated by the war, which is now costing $2 billion a month, with bombing at the level of World War II.

The voter reaction was probably against too much, too quickly. Including taxes.

Gov. George Romney emerged from the election as the brightest new prospect for the GOP nomination for president in 1968, along with former Vice President Richard Nixon as Mr. Reliable. But the Republicans elected a whole crop of attractive young men to office and this was a cumulative effect as impressive as the personal glitter of some of the victors.

The news of the past week about the Republicans, however, is not of their newly won power, but of their opening of old wounds. Governor-elect Ronald Reagan of California was asked whether the party should nominate a man in 1964 who hadn't backed the 1968 ticket. Reagan replied that the answer would depend on whether the person had repented or was "completely unrepentant."

This is playing with matches in political fireworks because it strikes directly at Governor Romney of Michigan and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

Romney's refusal to endorse Senator Barry Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential nominee, is familiar history, but not so familiar are the details of the decision as reported this week in the first publication of letter exchanges between the two men two years ago.

Goldwater has been suggested as a potential foe of Romney's nomination in '68. It could be very costly to the Michigan governor because Goldwater is an idol of much of the Republican Far Right. Reagan is now an influence in the Republican hierarchy and he was a star of the Goldwater 1964 campaign.

Goldwater's letter to Romney stated in part: "... You state 'We need to win elections and serve America as a broad-based political party.' How does that statement possibly square with the actions of leaders like you and Nelson Rockefeller? Where was this broad-based feeling on your part when you repeatedly refused to back the national ticket?"

"... I happen to be just as proud of my principles as you are of yours and I don't intend to compromise any basic feeling of mine any more than you do. Frankly, I don't understand what principles of mine you disagree with... Your talk about supporting all necessary action, public or private, to eliminate discrimination, merely echoes what I have said time and time and time again."

Romney's letter in reply said: "Barry, in essence what I'm urging is that you urge others to do in the field of civil rights what you say you have done at the private, local and state levels. To advocate it with such conviction that everyone will know you mean exactly that..."

"The conduct of the campaign and the Nov. 8 election results demonstrated that your campaign never effectively deviated from the Southern-rural-white orientation. Preconvention discussion and postelection discussions with some who were active in your campaign brought to my attention distressing evidence that this was part of the strategy."

"Barry, I do not assert you were aware of this strategy or the author of it. I frankly can't believe you shaped it. You didn't read the platform adopted in San Francisco and you didn't know what amendments were being offered on the floor so you were obviously leaving many vital things almost entirely up to others... For these philosophical, moral and strategic reasons, I was never able to endorse you during the campaign."

"I cannot accept the blame for divisiveness in the party when you, your representatives and your campaign strategy refused to encompass those of us who had reservations based on basic American and Republican principles. My reservations I voiced privately to your representatives and publicly on many occasions for some months before the San Francisco convention."

Goldwater did narrow the Republican appeal in 1964. It must be broadened in 1968 if the Republicans are to win the November election.

Who's Kiddin' Whom?

Dash Utah GOP Plan Questions And Answers

By BRUCE BROSART

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

The beatings suffered by state constitutional revision and legislative reform in Utah, engineered largely by the business community and arch-conservative elements, make a story worth telling widely.

This stout resistance to change in state government is newly displayed at the very moment the Republican party, triumphant Nov. 8 in Utah as in many places, is reported ready to unveil a new general strategy, assigning bigger roles to improved state-local governments.

Utah, to be sure, was not alone in vetoing legislative reforms in the 1966 voting. Kentucky, West Virginia, Nebraska and North Dakota were among states which slapped down modernizing measures.

And the picture was not all black. California voters approved an important new "legislative article" for inclusion in its constitution. Tennessee removed an old bar to higher legislative pay.

But the events in Utah nevertheless stand out vividly.

By a margin in excess of 5 to 1, Utah voters said "no" to the proposed calling of a constitutional convention. The purpose would have been general overhaul of a constitution which is 70 years old and which never has been broadly revised.

A 20,000-word document containing many specific provisions which are actually statutory in character, the Utah pact has been amended only 35 times. Most state constitutions of this sort have been amended two or three times as often.

Carried down with the ill-fated revision proposal were propositions calling for higher legislative pay, for annual sessions, for effective between-sessions legislative committees, for power to the Utah legislature to call itself back into session instead of being wholly dependent upon the governor's call. The pay proposal got the worst licking among these four.

At least two Utah political sources believe two or more of the reform items would have won but for the crushing effect of the fight against constitutional revision. Some businessmen are said to have expressed private regrets to political figures on this score.

But the available evidence suggests that most of the militant opponents of general revision were indifferent to the fate of the reform measures as they mounted their huge attack.

The assault was joined in, it is said, by Utah's power and mining interests, by the highway users who feared revision might allow some user taxes to go into general revenues, by Chambers of Commerce, and by an organization called the Tax-payors' Association.

As if this were not enough spokesmen for the John Birch Society, vigorously active in Utah, added their voices to the loud chorus.

Key television spot advertisements are believed to have had devastating impact. With dramatic accompanying pictures, they advised voters not to burn or shoot down their constitutional rights by going for revision of a document that had stood the test of 70 years.

Business groups and John Birch members also told voters that if they found the many revision and reform proposals confusing, the best thing to do was vote "no" on the whole lot.

At a time when constitutional revision is accomplished, is under way or soon to be attempted in such states as Michigan, California, Rhode Island, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, New York and Maryland, the voters of Utah have thus opted against change.

They took this decision while giving the Republicans a 59-40 edge in the Utah lower house (formerly 59-30 Democratic) and a 23-5 margin in the Senate (formerly 18-12 Democratic). Several Birch members or leaders are said to be among the winning Republicans.

A very hard question is where Utah's big conservative assault on state government modernization leaves the shiny new national GOP strategy intended to upgrade sharply the role of the states and cities.

Finding The Way

A Time For Constraint

By RALPH W. LOWE, B. S.

A few days ago Dr. Saul Alinsky commented that all too many people in northern cities want to keep things quiet. He called it a "too mentality," an attempt to keep people caged, quiet, and if not content, at least silent. He's probably right about it.

There are, undoubtedly, structures in every city that want to keep life free from controversy. As Ralph Sockman once said, "There are people who, if they saw the Lord coming down one side of the street and the devil coming down the other, would say, 'Here you two ought to get together.'"

This is the problem of restraint. Man can be restrained by tyrants, by laws or by their own habits. But they can also be restrained by their own inability to speak. If a man is in danger of economic or social jeopardy he can be easily restrained. On the other hand there are good restraints.

A traffic law which encourages a driver to handle the power of his automobile in a careful manner is a good restraint. I may be driving within legal limits, yet if I see a motorcycle policeman following me, I look at my speedometer and I feel the definite sense of restraint.

There is also the restraint that comes from fear. The President doesn't use nuclear power or bomb certain cities or escalate the war in certain ways because he must act in a restrained way. The possibilities of nuclear destruction are too awful to contemplate.

There's another word that needs to be explored in these days, namely the fine concept of constraint. There's no so much a mental about that. Constraint is an inner discipline. Think of the causes in any city that would be blessed if some people would use inner con-

Constraint doesn't lash out in unrestrained language. It doesn't bluster or threaten nor does it lie down in shameful apathy. Constraint has the quality of moral responsibility. You can be restrained by law but constrained by love.

The problem for too many people is that they are restrained by their own fears. They're afraid to do what they know they ought to do. As John Clardi once said, "In this security-conscious society of ours we're so afraid of going broke that we're afraid to go for broke."

There are too many people in our segregated clubs and civic groups who are restrained by their own fears. They're afraid of what someone will say. There are too many people in a neighborhood who are afraid to speak with courage. They're afraid of what someone will say.

It's easy enough to slash out with abusive words or irresponsible acts. What so many citizens need to explore is the ancient statement, "For the love of Christ constraineth us." J. B. Phillips translates that, "The very spring of our actions is the love of Christ."

There are social injustices to be dealt with in our time. There are areas which have the need of communication. There are honest people who have been working and are continuing to work to meet these needs, secure this justice and build a community in which every man is free, un-caged from either another man's tyranny or his own restraints. It is a time for constraint, a time when "the love of Christ allows us no chains."

Some defenders false-card automatically. Such false-card plays are more likely to fool their partners than the declarers. Expert defenders save their false cards for occasions when only the declarer can go wrong.

North's four club responses to his partner's no trump was the Gerber convention and asked South to show how many aces he held. South's four spade rebid showed two aces and North placed the contract at six no-trump.

It was a very good contract. South started with 11 tricks and without a heart opening he would make his twelfth trick in spades irrespective of the location of the king.

However, West opened the deuce of hearts. The eight was played from dummy and East could have forced South's ace with the ten but East played the queen instead. This play couldn't possibly fool West. East knew that South held the heart ace and, he was looking at every other heart down to the eight spot.

South looked at the queen of hearts for a long time. Then he put on his ace and ran off dummy's five club tricks.

He discarded two spades. East discarded the seven and deuce of the same suit, just in case South did not hold the king while West let a heart and two spades go.

Then South played two rounds of diamonds, went into executive session with himself, led a heart toward dummy and played the nine.

Had East played the ten of hearts at trick one, South would surely have tried the spade finesse and would have made his contract.

Ann Landers

Early Training, Not Policing Does Trick

Dear Ann Landers: I am 28 and the mother of two children. I am now pregnant with my third child. I called through my first two pregnancies with no trouble. This time, however, I am experiencing morning nausea and I can't eat anything until noon.

Is it possible for my husband to be sick on account of this, also? He actually throws up when I do and neither one of us can figure it out.

I told him I'd ask my doctor and he gave orders to keep quiet about it. He suggested I write to you and sign a phony name which I am doing. Please reply in the paper? Thank you. — MRS. SMITH

Mrs. Smith: Your husband should get a physical check-up and learn if there is something organically wrong with him.

Don't be surprised if he gets a clean bill of health. It is not uncommon for the husband to take on a wife's symptoms. Some men have actually had "labor pains" when their wives delivered.

When you get feeling better (son, I hope) I'll bet he will feel better too.

Dear Ann Landers: I teach in an elementary school in Baltimore. It rained today and I came home completely exhausted from snapping 25 raincoats and struggling with almost as many pairs of boots.

In the dead winter it's worse. There are leggings sweaters, galoshes storm coats and hats. Please, Ann Landers, tell mothers through your column that by the time their children are old enough to go to school they should be able to dress themselves and put on their own boots. This means that lessons in hooking, tying buttoning, snapping and buckling should begin at age three. Much obliged — POOPED

Dear Pooped: It's not only better for the teacher when the small fry can manage for themselves, it's better for the kids. Youngsters who are taught self-reliance are fortunate. Mental health begins in infancy. Independence and a sense of achievement are important cornerstones. A few minutes a day will do it, mother.

There is no longer safety in numbers.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter is approaching dating age and I'm terrified. I believe children should be trusted, but in today's society can't too much.

They say the occupational therapy classes in lunacy houses are now busy turning out Christmas neckties.

trust be dangerous? Celeste says double-dating is a good safeguard against getting into trouble, but I don't think it means anything anymore. From what I read, heavy petting is so commonplace that there is no longer safety in numbers.

Don't you think parents should go to the movies with a daughter and her date? They don't have to sit together but they could be somewhere around. Also, don't you think parents should encourage their teen-age girls to entertain boy friends in the house so they won't park in cars and go out of the way places? I'd like your opinion. — DREAMING OF A BETTER WORLD

Dear Dreaming: Wake up. Dear, and accept the fact that early training — and not policing — will determine how your daughter conducts herself.

I am in favor of girls entertaining their boy friends in the living room, but they must have privacy. Forget about tagging along to the movies with your daughter and her date. Teens who feel they are under constant surveillance will make a game of outsmarting their captors and they will win, eventually.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex — Ten Ways To COOL IT." Send 50c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

State Closes Nine Miles Of Highway M 35

The Department of State Highways has been forced to close nine miles of M 35 from Little Lake to McFarland in Marquette County because of flooding of the Saw Mill Creek just south of Little Lake.

Sam Cryderman, maintenance operations engineer, said cause of the flooding could not be immediately determined. He said the road closure will be signed at Gladstone to the south and at the junction of U. S. 41 and M 35 east of Neegaunee to the north.

Special Service At Congregational Sunday

By MRS. THOMAS SAFFORD thoughts of what that paper Sunday, Dec. 4 at 10:30 a. m., represents. The service will be Rapid River Congregational conducted by Rev. Phillip C. Church will conduct a special Meili, present pastor and the ceremony at its worship service. Participating in the service will be Mrs. Esther Caswell, members, and friends of the church to come and help celebrate in this special church occasion.

Rev. Howard Brooks, now serving a pastorate in Wisconsin, was pastor at the Rapid River Church in the fall of 1958, when the parish hall burned. The fire started in the early hours of the morning and had a good start before the fire call was made to the Rapid River Fire Department. The firemen knew that the hall could not be saved so the main concern was to save the church and parsonage. The parish hall was attached to the church and the parsonage joins the church building.

Last Person
Bob Olson of Ensign was perhaps the last person in the old hall. The choir had practice the night before the fire and Bob had gone into the hall to secure some hymnals for the choir members. Firemen said if Bob hadn't securely shut the parish hall door that night, that the fire would have consumed the church too. Defective wiring was the fire cause.

The hall was a total loss only a few chairs and dishes were saved from the flames. Mrs. Hazel Bond remembers salvaging dishes from the ashes. The dishes were charred beyond recognition, but were picked up and taken to the Bond home and scoured and cleaned. The building was covered by insurance but not the contents.

The building was brought to the church lot in 1932 when Rev. Serge Hummond was pastor. It was purchased from the CCC camp at Camp Cooks. The building was small but held the church's Sunday School classrooms, kitchen facilities and other supplies.

Built Again
Following the 1959 fire, Rev. Brooks called a meeting of the church and it was decided by the congregation to build again. Construction on the new hall began in the spring of 1960 with carpenters, Al Bond, Caryle Holmgren, and Ward Johnson of Rapid River doing most of the building; Hjalmar Nelson of Ensign did the plumbing and Richard Wilson of Rapid River the electric wiring. The finishing work was done by the people of the church. Everyone pitched in and helped, the coffee pot was always on and the women were prepared with sandwiches, homemade coffee, rolls and cookies.

Guy Wellman of Rapid River spent many dedicated hours at the church helping with the finishing. Guy died in 1963, but a picture of him hangs on the parish hall wall in his memory. A faithful work team was Ray and Abby LaBumard, many of each day's hours were given by them in service to their church. Abby died early part of this year, but the memory of her service to her church will live on. Mrs. Robert Olson says, "It was a lot of hard work, but the fun we had!"

Debt Paid
And now the hall debt is paid, it was paid by more hard work that comes from a church that works together. Church dinners were planned, bake sales were held, spring household auctions were conducted. A familiar sight on the streets of Rapid River is the Congregational Church's wagon, it used to be a red wagon, but now it is a new white trailer. In the summertime the wagon sits on U. S. 2, in front of Mrs. Rudy Christensen's home and offers its wares of bake goods, bird houses, and rag rugs, all contributions from the people of the church. So this Sunday at the Rapid River church, a paper will be burned while the people look on with their own special

A sonar-equipped search plane located what is believed to be the 600-foot freighter under 150 feet of water Friday, more than three days after the 60-year-old vessel split in two in a raging gale.

Only one member of the 28-man crew — 20-year-old Dennis Hale of Ashtabula, Ohio — survived. Apparently he suffered no after-effects from 36 hours on an open life raft.

Broken oars, life jackets and other debris from the wreckage littered the shoreline near Harbor Beach. A rudder and a portion of a life boat were discovered about the same time the sunken hull was spotted.

The rudder was found 20 miles west of Bayfield, Ontario. A marker was planted over the remains of the hull in case the ship's operators, Bethlehem Steel Corp., decide to salvage it. The Coast Guard will convene an official board of inquiry in Cleveland Monday.

MARQUETTE — Applications are now being accepted for the 1967-68 Mott Foundation Inter-university Clinical Preparation Program for Educational Leadership, according to Ben Martin, Northern Michigan University community school consultant.

Grants provided last year by the Mott Foundation through Northern and six other state-assisted universities enabled 54 educators from 19 states and five foreign countries to study in Flint towards a master's degree in community school administration or towards a specialist or doctoral degree.

This year, according to Martin, 54 persons are participating in the one-year program. The later - university program emphasizes the extension of public education to include all segments of a community and the use of school facilities as community centers after regular hours.

In the Upper Peninsula, community school programs are in operation at Gwinn, Iron Mountain-Kingsford, Menominee, Manistique, and Iron River-Stambaugh. Approximately 50 programs are in operation throughout the state.

During the past two years, 12 Mott "interns" earned their master's degree in community education through Northern. This year, five "interns" are working through NMU towards their master's degree and two former Upper Peninsula school superintendents are working toward their doctor's degrees.
